

Getting ready for GDPR

Are you ready for the new 2018 General Data Protection Regulations?

Do you know your legal obligations and liabilities?

This new consolidated one day training course from the BFPA will provide attendees with 'no-nonsense', clear guidance on how to ensure that you comply with the law whilst minimising the inconvenience to your business. Compliance need not be difficult but to fail to do so can be very expensive and detrimental to your business.

The GDPR is a complex regulation and on the path to compliance, there will be unanticipated roadblocks. The good news is that with the right guidance, you can find your way through them relatively easily.

(GDPR) will become enforceable from May 25th, 2018 and will deeply affect not only the way you manage customer data but also that relating to your staff. It also applies to any organisation outside the EU who wishes to undertake business inside the Union.

Topics covered

The BFPA has brought together the necessary expertise, stripped away the all too common 'scare-mongering' of many 'experts' such as law firms and IT companies to bring you a clear explanation of your obligations and to provide you with a clear action plan for compliance within your business.

Who should attend?

Whether you are in Sales, Marketing, HR, or the MD of your organisation, this is an ideal, cost effective solution to understanding the new GDPR regulations and requires just one day of your valuable time.
